

Outback Roundup 2022

The Merit Winners, Part 1

*Keep taking your great photos and cover all seasons
so that you will be ready to enter our Outback Roundup 2023.
Entry blank is on page 31.*

“Hurry”

Wet, cold, but happy, the ranch crew is almost done branding during a northeast Nevada high-country summer storm near Elko, Nevada. © Robin Paine

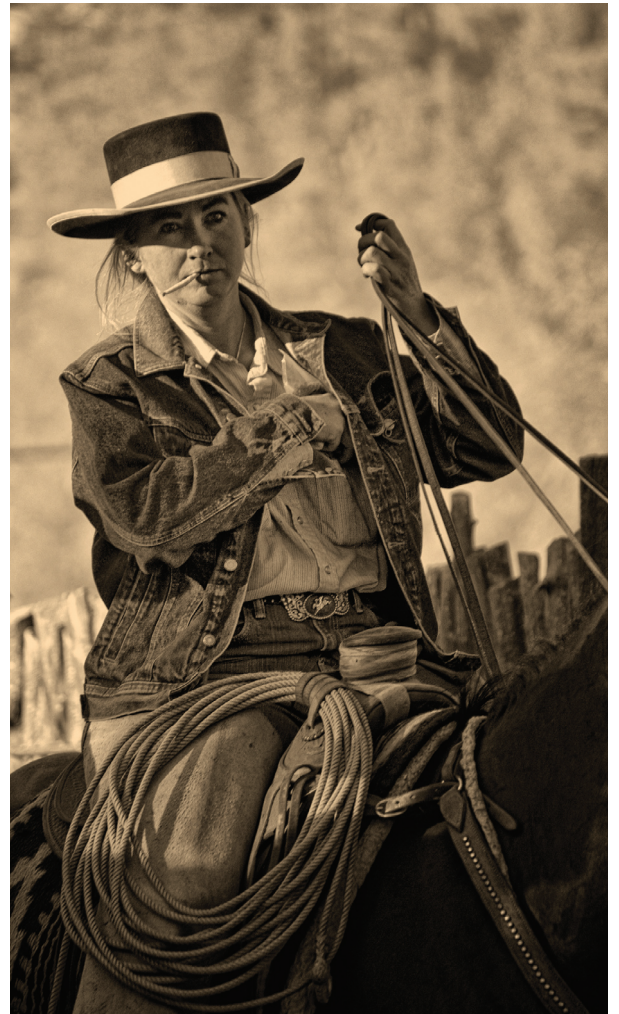

“I’m Not Too Sure”
Coney Elise Dell’Orto seems suspicious of the Rocky Mountain oysters at the ranch on Stoney Creek Road in Jackson, California.
 © Robin Dell’Orto

“The Kid & the Cattle”
Knox Dell’Orto, almost five, helps push the herd back into the pasture after branding in the Sierra Nevada foothills of California’s Amador County. © Larry Angier

“Hawkeye”
Once thought averse to towns and cities, Cooper’s hawks are now fairly common urban and suburban birds. Some studies show their numbers are actually higher in towns than in their natural habitat—forests. This portrait is from Grand Junction, Colorado. © Marina Schultz

“Jamie”
Jamie Wood takes time out to roll a smoke at the Triangle HC shipping pens on the 7 Up Ranch in Prescott, Arizona. © Kathy McCraine