

Outback Roundup 2023

THE MERIT WINNERS, PART II

Here are a few more photo contest winners, chosen from more than 200 entries from New York to California. That means it's time for you to gather your best and enter Outback Roundup 2024, which will be judged in February. (The 2024 entry blank is on page 85.)

Keep your cameras handy, go out in weather fair and foul, and record ranchers and ranges all over the West.

Winners will earn fame and money. ■

“Cabin in the Woods”

A snowy day in Washoe Valley off Old Highway 395. The wind suddenly came up and blew snow everywhere for a surreal and peaceful moment.

© Mary Lou Schindler,
Washoe Valley, Nevada

“Kylynn”
A horse lover and future barrel racer.
© Marina Schultz,
Grand Junction,
Colorado

“Going Home”

Madison Trimbel brings up the drag at Broken Back Ranch. Cows are on the way home from the Badlands of the Bighorn Basin in Wyoming.
© Belinda Daugherty, Ten Sleep, Wyoming

“Is It My Turn?”

Steve Wooster’s dog, Sister, gets as close as she can to the calf branding in Calaveras County, California.
© Robin Dell’Orto, Mokelumne Hill, California

“Deep Powder”

A snow-covered bison in Yellowstone National Park.
© Hal Beesley, La Canada, California

